

The best start would be to line up the front frame with the rear and see where they would need to cut their frame.

Proceed to cut their frame.

They would then line up the rear section and mount the transmission plate to the front and rear portion of the frame.

Once plate is mounted and frame plugs are inserted, they would then weld the frames together.

